Earthenware Pottery and Ikat – Sukarara and Banyumulek – Full Day

Lombok is famous for its traditional earthenware pottery made from local clay with distinctive designs, as well as hand-woven sarongs and fabrics (ikat). Weavers work outside many of the shops, using antiquated "back strap looms" to painstakingly produce works of art. Some of the larger pieces can take several months to weave and collectors from around the world visit these villages to purchase blankets, sarongs and cloth produced here. Banyumulek is an important centre for pottery on Lombok. The small village has many shops selling pottery produced in the area, as well as from other main pottery-making villages. Lombok pottery, with its distinctive terracotta styles, is famous internationally and is exported throughout the world.
